WEBSITE HELPS YOU HELP TROOPS

Jan 19, 2005

An East Idaho woman wants to spread the word about a website that is helping support the troops. It has information on where, what, and how to send to the troops.

Jennifer Jones of Idaho Falls came across the site about a year ago. She says she doesn't have any family serving in the military, but she wanted to find a way to show support. The thing she really likes about this site is that troops who are serving overseas post messages and let her know exactly what they are in need of.

"The soldiers that are over there give up so much for our country and they're giving up their families and in the case of our Idaho National Guardsmen, they're giving up their jobs for a while and they're going over there. A lot of them take a cut in pay, and this gives us a good way to show that we support them and help keep their morale up while they're over there."

The website is anysoldier.com. To find soldiers from Idaho, click on the 'where to send' icon, type 'Idaho' in the requests box, and hit the 'search' button. Right now, there are 13 soldiers from Idaho who have posted requests.
